“Prophets are not without honour, except in their hometown, and among their own kin, and in their own house.”

Canadian painter Emily Carr experienced the truth of Jesus’ words, recalled today in our gospel reading. The landscape of British Columbia defied the classical approach she learned in Europe, leading her to develop a wild and expansive method all her own. Her experiments put her firmly in the league of the Group of Seven (which appreciated and admired her work) but didn’t find much favour in young Vancouver and Victoria, whose art enthusiasts struggled to understand what she was trying to convey: the unbroken power of the rainforest; its mighty trees; the hidden life of its first people.

Emily Carr lived in poverty and alone for most of her life, and today is considered one of Canada’s greatest artists.

A note on today’s offering hymn:

Hello, friends! Sometimes I take a hymn I particularly like and revise the text to make it a little more appealing to the modern ear. I feel this hymn speaks especially to those who’ve been following Jesus all or most of their lives. It recalls God’s promises in scripture and reminds us that, in all life’s ups and downs, we can rely on God’s care and have confidence in Jesus’ constant presence. Thanks to Rachel for allowing me to share this version with you all.
